DARK TOBACCO GROWERS PLAN ORGANIZATION

Farmers Pack Owensboro Court House to Hear Burley Growers' Counsel.

Owensboro, Ky., Jan. 15.—A crowd of tobacco growers that filled the Daviess county circuit courtroom almost to capacity, after hearing the eloquent address of Virgil Chapman, of Lexington, assistant general counsel of the Burley Tobacco Growers Co-operative Marketing association, Saturday afternoon voted unanimously that Judge R. W. Bingham and other organizers of the Burley pool be invited to come to Western Kentucky as soon as possible to launch a campaign to form a similar organization in the Green River, One Sucker and Stemming districts.

Almost to a man the tobacco growers, by a rising vote, pledged themselves to become members of such an organization and to work to organize it. They then by applause and a rising vote thanked Mr. Chapman for his talk.

The opinion was expressed that some of the organizers of the Burley association would be free to come here this month to address a mass meeting of farmers and that the drive to organize the farmers of this section of the state could be gotten under way by next month. In this event it is felt the organization can be completed by the time the next crop of tobacco is ready to be cut.

Benefits To Be Gained

Mr. Chapman made a very eloquent address in which he showed a thorough understanding of the Burley growers' association.

Commenting on the benefits of co-operative marketing Mr. Chapman said that before the fruit growers organized they received eight to twelve cents for every $1 spent by the consumer for their products. Now they receive forty-eight cents out every dollar paid for their products. In one of the richest of the fruit growing counties the farmers had $1,000,000 in banks before co-operation and now have $24,000,000 deposited, he said. The fruit growers receive now $25,000,000 annually for their products and the sales have been increased several hundred per cent. They spend $2,000,000 annually in advertising their products and have thereby increased the demand enormously.

Methods in Burley District

Mr. Chapman explained the defects in the present marketing system which he called a "blind" system and said the co-operative system would replace it by matching salesmanship with salesmanship and substituting merchandising for dumping.

He pointed out that under the present system the tobacco manufacturer and buyers borrows money with which he buys tobacco; pays factor and buyer borrows money etc., adding these to the price he asks for his tobacco but not taking into consideration the cost to the farmer of growing the crop. Under the co-operative system, he said, the farmer would figure land values, depreciation, labor, interest on his investment, and base the price for his tobacco on the actual cost of raising it plus a reasonable profit.

Every safeguard has been provided to protect the organization from failure, he said. The members were required to sign a five-year contract; the contract was not binding until signed by seventy-five per cent of the growers. They had secured the signatures of approximately eighty-five per cent of the growers, he said, and it is now up to the tobacco companies to buy from them or go out, pany, Cincinnati. Publishers' price of business. "The companies realize f. o. b. Cincinnati $1.11, this," he said, "and when Mr. Stone, president of the association, went to New York to interview the heads of the big manufacturing companies recently he was assured that they would not fight the association but Publishers' price f. o. b. Columbus, would be in the market for its tobacco.

Plenty of Warehouses

"Some of the warehouses did not want to lease us their property," he said, "but they are now coming to us asking us to take their property. We anticipate that if the association is able to get a better price than the other growers this year it will be practically hundred per cent strong next year.

"If there is a surplus crop the association has redrying plants ready to hoghead the tobacco and hold it for a market."

"Ample financial backing has been obtained," Mr. Chapman said in answer to a question on this point. "We have the backing of most of the banks in the Burley district, the support of Louisville and Cincinnati banks, of New York banks including some of the strongest of the country, and finally of the war corporation and federal reserve board."

In explaining the working of the organization the speaker said that the grading would be done by the association graders, the most experienced men to be obtained, and the injustice of the same grades of tobacco selling at widely different prices, which prevails under the present system, would be abolished.

In conclusion, Mr. Chapman said: "Not only have the growers of the Burley sections organized, but great organizations are being formed in Virginia and the Carolinas."

"I predict that inside of twelve months every section where tobacco is grown will be organized. We extend to you tobacco growers of Western Kentucky the right hand of fellowship and invite you to organize also because thereby you will not only greatly benefit yourselves but you will strengthen our organization also."

A REVIVAL AT THE METHODIST CHURCH

There will be a series of revival services held at the Methodist Church in Hartford beginning on Monday night, the 30th. of January. Don't forget the date: Monday night after the 5th. Sunday in this month. Rev. L. W. Turner, pastor of the church at Calhoun, Ky., will do the preaching. This is our first revival effort in the Hartford church for two years, and I assure we all can get great good out of the meeting by putting much into it. Every body in town is cordially invited to attend all services. The following will be the arrangement for some services preparatory to the meeting.

1. On the two Wednesday evenings between now and the date for the meeting there will be held in the church devotional meetings in which the revival will be the main subject.

2. At 7 p. m. on the evening of the fourth Sunday in this month there will be held in the basement of the church a men's devotional meeting conducted by W. H. Barnes. And on the same date and at the same hour there will be held in the main auditorium of the church a women's meeting conducted by Mrs. B. B. McInerney.

3. On the fifth Sunday evening at 7 p. m. there will be a mass meeting of all who will attend in the main auditorium conducted by the pastor.

4. The hours for the regular services of the meeting will be decided when Bro. Turner arrives and announced at the first service.

Now reader to prevent your forgetting the above arrangement just cut this out and pin it on the wall where you can refer to it any time.

We are going to expect you.

T. T. FRAZIER, Pastor.

PEDAGOGY TEXTS FOR THE YEAR ANNOUNCED

The following notice has been received by Mrs. I. S. Mason, Superintendent:

As required by law the State Board of Education has selected the following texts upon which the questions on pedagogy for the coming year will be based:

(1) For Elementary Teacher's Certificate, "The Classroom Teacher," by Strayer and Engelhardt, published by the American Book Companies to buy from them or go out, pany, Cincinnati. Publishers' price of business. "The companies realize f. o. b. Cincinnati $1.11, this," he said, "and when Mr. Stone,

(2) For State Certificate, State president of the association, went to New York to interview the heads of the big manufacturing companies recently he was assured that they would not fight the association but Publishers' price f. o. b. Columbus, would be in the market for its tobacco.

All questions for teachers' examinations on the subject of Theory and Practice for the year 1922 will be based upon these texts, the Course of Study, and School Law.

Very truly,
WARREN PEYTON,
State Examiner of Teachers.

NEWBERRY RETAINS SENATE SEAT, 46 TO 41

Only Republicans Vote For Him; Amendment Condemning Slush Fund Adopted.

Washington, Jan. 12.—Truman H. Newberry, of Michigan, tonight finally won his long fight for a seat in the United States senate.

The right to the seat was determined by the senate itself, which by a vote of 46 to 41 on a resolution sponsored by Republican leaders, asserted that Mr. Newberry was entitled to his seat.

All who voted for him were Republicans, while nine Republicans and thirty-two Democrats voted against him. Three senators were paired for and three against the resolution and three senators did not vote.

Added to the resolution declaring Mr. Newberry entitled to his seat and denying the claim of Henry Ford, the defeated Democratic contestant in the 1918 election, that because of campaign expenditures Mr. Newberry was not entitled to sit in the senate, was a statement of public policy by which the senate "severely condemned and disapproved" the use of excessive sums in behalf of any candidate.

The roll call showed the following Republican Senators against seating Newberry: Borah, Capper, Jones (Washington), Kenyon, Ladd, La Follette, Norbeck, Norris and Sutherland.

Six senators were paired, three Republicans, Crowe, of Pennsylvania, du Pont, Delaware, and Moses, New Hampshire, being paired for Senator Newberry with Senators Kendrick, of Wyoming, Stanley, Kentucky, and Reed, of Missouri, against.

Three senators were absent. They were: Newberry, Johnson, of California, Republicans, and Watson, Democrat, Georgia.

All other Republican Senators voted for Newberry; all other Democrats against.

Text of Resolution

The text of the resolution by which Mr. Newberry's title to his seat was cleared and which dismissed the charges made and the contest filed against him by Henry Ford follows:

"1. That the contest of Henry Ford against Truman H. Newberry be, and it is hereby dismissed.

"2 That Truman H. Newberry is hereby declared to be a duly elected senator from the state of Michigan for the term of six years commencing on the fourth day of March, 1919, and is entitled to hold his seat in the senate of the United States.

"3. That whether the amount expended in this (Michigan) primary was $195,000, as was fully reported or openly acknowledged, or whether there were some few thousand dollars in excess, the amount expended was in either case too large, much larger than ought to have been expended. The expenditure of such excessive sums in behalf of a candidate, either with or without his knowledge and consent, being contrary to sound public policy, harmful to the honor and dignity of the senate and dangerous to the perpetuity of a free government, such excessive expenditures are hereby severely condemned and disapproved."

I. C. R. R. FREIGHT TRAIN WRECKS NEAR SIMMONS

Eleven cars of a heavily loaded coal train were derailed in Southard's Cut, near Simmons, Monday night at about 8 o'clock. None of the crew were seriously injured but it is rumored that a hobo was killed and is covered up in the debris.

Passenger traffic was delayed about 18 hours, and it was necessary to route some trains over other roads. There have been several other wrecks at this cut.

Hartford Lodge No. 675 F. & A. M. held a very interesting session, Monday night. The Master Mason's degree was conferred upon David C. Miller, who is temporarily located at Central City. A number of Central City Masons accompanied him to Hartford and assisted in conferring the work. A goodly number of other visiting Masons were present and some interesting talks made.

PREMIER BRIAND UNEX- PECTEDLY RESIGNS

Decision Due to Resentment Over Fight on His Policy At Cannes.

Paris, Jan. 12.—Aristide Briand today resigned from the Premiership and Raymond Poincare, former President of the Republic, likely will succeed him.

M. Briand's resignation came with dramatic suddenness in the Chamber of Deputies, for the Premier, returning this morning from his conferences with the British Prime Minister at Cannes, had brought the opposing members of his Cabinet into accord with his policies, and, by a powerful speech in the Chamber, apparently had won over the great majority to his side.

His blunt eloquence evoked a tremendous ovation, and when he abruptly declared his intention of withdrawing from the Government, the members of the Chamber seemed overwhelmed.

Announcement of the resignation of M. Briand comes with startling suddenness at the moment of his concluding with Mr. Lloyd George a treaty designed to guarantee France's security against an unprovoked attack by Germany. Although the text of the proposed pact, agreed upon at Cannes, has not been made public, his political opponents have strongly objected to what they charged as excessive concessions granted by M. Briand on the subject of German reparations.

His resignation also contains a dramatic element in that only this morning his Cabinet was reported to be in complete accord with his policies at the Allied Supreme Council meeting at Cannes whence he came yesterday afternoon to defend his actions there.

LOCALS MAKE 50-50 RECORD AT CENTRAL CITY

The boys' and girls' basketball teams of the Hartford High School journeyed to Central City Friday where they tied up that night in a double bill with the goal artists of the C. C. High School. Both games were clean, fast and, consequently, interesting. The girls won by the score of 11 to 0. The personnel of the feminine contingents was as follows:

Hartford—Forwards, Clark and Barnett; Center, Carter; Guards, Howard and King; Substitutes, Henry and Kirk.

Central City—Forwards, Salsberg and Blacklock; Center, Muir; Guards, Morgan and Pollock.

The local boys were defeated by the count of 22 to 11. The line-ups were as follows:

Hartford—Forwards, Crowe and Shultz; Center, Bartlett; Guards, Likens and Bennett; Substitute, Baird.

Central City—Forwards, Frost and Eads; Center, Sharp; Guards, Wallace and Green.

The games were called by Mr. Joe Crockett, of Central City. The local teams were accompanied by Miss Florence Nelson and Profs. O. L. Shultz and W. P. Rhoads, teachers in the Hartford High School; Miss Mildred Stevenson and Mr. Harry May.

After the games the Hartford visitors were most delightfully entertained at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wallace by the Central City teams, other students, teachers and patrons.

Mr. Harvey Sheffield, who operates a pool room in Hartford, was burned on one hand one night last week when starting the gasoline lights in his place of business. As a result he will lose the use of the injured member for two or three weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Bishop have taken rooms in the residence of Mrs. Maggie Griffin, city. Mr. Bishop has been selected as a deputy under the new Circuit Clerk, Mr. Frank Black.

Miss Gustine Mills, the Hartford Republican's typist, has been ill, returned to their home Saturday after spending a month with relatives here and at McHenry and with friends at Calhoun.

Mr. and Mrs. Porter were entertained on Xmas Eve by Mr. and Mrs. Frank Black with a watermelon eating with watermelons grown on their farm. Mr. John B. Likens, of Alabama was also a guest.

FARM LOAN ASSOCIATION

DECLARES DIVIDEND

Seven Per Cent to Stockholders; Officers For 1922 Are Elected.

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Hartford National Farm Loan Association was held at the office of the Secretary-Treasurer in the Herald building last Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Reports for the year were received showing that loans totaling $45,660 had been closed since March 1, when operations were resumed by the Land Bank. Six loans are now pending and there are 129 names on the Association's waiting list of applicants.

The Association is not in debt, the fees charged applicants having provided adequate to defray running expenses. It was reported by the Secretary-Treasurer that a dividend of 8 per cent on the Association's stock in the Federal Land Bank of Louisville, had been received. Whereupon it was ordered that one tenth of the dividend be set aside for a reserve and invested, as required by law, and that a dividend of 7 per cent be declared and paid on the stock of the association.

The following stockholders were elected to serve as Directors for the ensuing year: Messrs. Thaddeus Barnard, Hartford, Route 2; S. O. Keown, Hartford; H. W. Haynes, W. C. Ashly and M. B. Barnard, Hartford, Route 3.

On Saturday afternoon the newly elected Directors met and elected the following officers for the year 1922: President, S. O. Keown, Hartford; Vice President, W. C. Ashly, Hartford, Route 3; Secretary-Treasurer, McDowell A. Fogle, Hartford; Members Loan Committee, H. E. Milligan, Hartford, Route 2; J. T. Moorman and Golden Stalworth, Hartford; Alternate Members Loan Committee, L. M. Askins, Narrows, Route 1; W. D. Coleman, Paradise, and D. E. Ward, Hartford, Route 3, Abstracter.

Loans through this Association are being handled as rapidly as application blanks and funds are made available by the Land Bank. It is hoped and expected that the volume of business done by the Association will be more than doubled during the current year.

MRS. TINSLEY ENTERTAINS

Mrs. W. S. Tinsley delightfully entertained the Ladies' Social Club at her residence in Clay Street between the hours of 2:30 and 5:00 p. m. last Friday. After a number of interesting progressive card games were enjoyed the guests partook of a dainty and refreshing luncheon.

Members present were: Madeline C. O. Hunter, Darrell Sullenger, E. G. Barrass, Belle Cooper, R. T. Collins, E. E. Birkhead, J. S. Glenn, W. C. Blankenship, A. C. Porter, J. B. Winter And Spring Best Time To Prune

Farmers may prune their fruit trees safely during any part of the dormant season, except freezing weather, giving preference to late winter and early spring, according to recommendations made by orchard specialists at the College of Agriculture to Kentucky farmers who have inquired as to the best time to do this work. Young trees, which were planted in the fall, can be pruned best in the spring, the specialists say.

"When old apple trees need thinning and heading back, it is advisable to thin one year and head back the next," H. R. Niswonger, orchard specialist at the college said. "All dead and diseased branches should be removed and burned the first year. In removing laterals, it is best to cut close to the main branch in order to eliminate stubs. It is a good practice to cover all large cuts with grafting wax to prevent entrance of disease."

The pruning of trees of this kind should consist in correcting crowded conditions of the lower part by removing small branches, especially those that contain old, worn out fruit spurs. Heavy pruning by cutting out large limbs encourages growth near the cut end and the following season and reduces production the second year. The removal of large limbs on the lower part and in the center of the tree opens large holes which admit too much sunlight.

"Heading back the main limbs by cutting to a side branch which points down and out will tend to lower the tree top, and make spraying and harvesting of the fruit easier. Heading back by completely removing large upright branches is to be condemned because this treatment opens the top of the tree."

"It is difficult to rejuvenate old neglected peach trees satisfactorily, but those which are healthy and vigorous may be renewed by rather severe cutting back. The tall branches should be cut back to laterals and as much as three or four years of growth removed if necessary. Crowded lateral branches may be thinned and the central ones cut back to encourage renewal of the bearing wood."

Marion Beef Feeders To Conduct Demonstrations

Four Marion county farmers who are co-operating with County Agent H. J. Childress and the extension division of the College of Agriculture will conduct steer feeding demonstrations during the coming months, according to a report from the county. The demonstrations will be designed to point out some of the important factors in the production of beef to farmers in that district.

State's Corn Yield Cut By Unfit Soils

Kentucky farmers are using much poor soil for corn production which if seeded to grass instead of corn would return them a greater profit and make their farms more productive, soils and crops specialists at the College of Agriculture say. Use of this poor land for corn production state is one of the principal reasons for the low average corn yield of the State, they declare.

In 1919, the average corn yield for the State was only 22 bushels an acre. Over a ten-year period, it is slightly higher, being about 28 bushels an acre. The average yield in the poorer counties is less than 15 bushels an acre this yield being too low to be profitable, according to the specialists. On the other hand the better corn counties of the State produce an average of about 40 bushels of the grain an acre, a yield high enough to be profitable.

"The labor expended in plowing, preparing the seed bed and cultivating land that produces 15 bushels of corn an acre is practically the same as that required by land that produces 50 bushels of corn an acre," R. E. Shephenson, a member of the department said. "The poor land will not pay tillage costs and when tilled is made still poorer because the tillage encourages leaching and erosion losses."

"On the other hand, if the poor land is seeded to grass, there are no tillage costs after the stand is secured. If the weeds are controlled and some attention given to fertilization, grass land usually becomes better while producing a pasture to recover all large cuts with grafting wax to prevent entrance of disease."

"Japan clover and red top are the conditions of the lower part by removing small branches, especially those that contain old, worn out fruit spurs. Heavy pruning by cutting out large limbs encourages growth near the cut end and the following season and reduces production the second year. The removal of large limbs on the lower part and in the center of the tree opens large holes which admit too much sunlight."

Farm boys and girls of Knox county are taking an active interest in junior agricultural club work, a report from County Agent Earl Mayhew states. At the present time, more than 700 youngsters are enrolled in various clubs in the county.

Poultry Problems Stated For Tenth Farm Conclave

Poultry housing, feeding and management will be among the subjects to receive special attention at the tenth annual Farm and Home Convention to be held at the College of Agriculture Jan. 31 and Feb. 1, 2 and 3, according to the tentative program being arranged for the event. As in former years, a part of the general program has been set aside for farmers and their wives who are especially interested in farm poultry problems.

Included among the speakers who have been scheduled to address the convention are C. L. Manwaring, a commercial poultryman of Mentone, Ind., who has made a consistent yearly profit from his flock; J. T. Wilson, Corydon, whose flock has been one of the leading ones among the 47 being conducted as demonstrations in the State; J. H. Martin, in charge of poultry work at the college and J. R. Smyth, extension poultryman of the college.

Mr. Manwaring will outline some of the principals he employs in making his flock return $10,000 profit a year, his subject having been announced as "A $10,000 A Year From Poultry." He also will tell some of the things which the Indiana poultry association is accomplishing for poultrymen in that State. Mr. Wilson will discuss the management of his flock and tell the farmers and their wives how he has been able to maintain a high average egg production.

"Commercial Poultry Raising in an acre. Over a ten-year period, it is slightly higher, being about 28 bushels an acre. The average yield in the poorer counties is less than egg production. He will point out some of the things to be considered when selecting hens for layers. In addition, he will give an address on "Farm Poultry in Kentucky." Following the address, the Kentucky Poultry Association will hold a meeting and elect officers.

The poultry program which is to be held on Wednesday, Feb. 1, will be concluded with an address by Aaron Sapiro, California marketing expert. Mr. Sapiro will speak at 7:30 o'clock in the evening.

Records Help Farmer Through Low Periods

During the present period of financial and agricultural depression, it is more important than ever before that farmers study their farm business, keep books and produce their crops and livestock with the greatest possible efficiency and economy, farm management specialists at the College of Agriculture are pointing out to Kentucky farmers. The farmer, like any other business man or manufacturer must study his business if he is to make a success of it they say.

"Surveys made in the State show that one of the chief characteristics of successful farmers is that they are on the alert to learn better and cheaper ways of doing things connected with their business," C. U. Jett, a member of the department said. "Farmers who made a profit during the past year kept books on their business and used their heads as well as their hands and muscles."

"One of the principal values of a set of farm account books is the close study of the farm activities which it makes possible. Information gathered in the books suggest modifications in crop and livestock practices which, as a general rule, make production more economical and profitable. This information also suggests ways and means of reducing operating expenses. "When the trend of agricultural prices is upward, farmers may use inefficient and uneconomical methods of farming and still have a profit at the end of the year. On the other hand, during periods of depression, it is only by the most efficient and economical methods of production that farmers are able to realize a profit."

Larue Farmers Plan To Keep Books And Records

In order to put their farm business on a systematic basis, a number of Larue county farmers will keep books and records during the coming year, according to a report from County Agent J. W. Jones. One of the banks in the county, which is assisting in the movement, has purchased a number of farm account books which will be distributed to farmers who will keep records during 1922. Four farmers already have started their records.

Farm And Home News From Over Kentucky

Oldham county farmers will give more attention to the keeping of farm records during the coming year, according to a report from County Agent Gordon B. Nance. Eleven already have been enrolled to keep books on their farm business.

Corn, hogs, poultry, clover and dairying will be the lines of farm activity to receive special attention from farmers in the Red Fern community of Taylor county during the coming year, according to plans outlined in a program of work which they have just completed in co-operation with County Agent J. L. Miller.

During the coming year, six Knox county farmers who are owners of representative farm orchards will co-operate with County Agent Earl Mayhew in conducting demonstrations with their fruit trees to show the value of proper orchard management. They will use prescribed methods in demonstrating to farmers of that district how the yield of fruit may be increased.

In order to eliminate low-producing cows and produce milk at a lower cost, a number of Fayette county farmers are planning to keep records on their herds and feed a balanced ration during the coming year, according to County Agent W. R. Gabbert.

Jackson county farmers are making a systematic effort to rid the county of scrub hogs with the result that the last one is expected to be disposed of in the near future, a report from County Agent W. R. Reynolds states. As a part of the movement, 114 purebred pigs have been distributed among junior agricultural club members of the county.

That's the home of backache. If it's caused by weak kidneys, Use Doan's Kidney Pills.

Hartford people testify to their worth. Ask your neighbor? Read a case of it:

E. L. Ashley, farmer, Griffin St., Hartford, says: "I consider Doan's Kidney Pills a reliable remedy. They helped me considerably when I was troubled with backache and a too frequent action of my kidneys. This remedy helped my kidneys to act better and relieved my back. Doan's made me feel better generally and I am glad to recommend them." (Statement given November 17, 1916.)

On January 25, 1921, Mr. Ashley said: "I still use a few Doan's Kidney Pills whenever I have trouble with my kidneys and they never fail to promptly cure me. I consider Doan's have no equal for kidney trouble and I am glad to tell anyone about them."

Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Ashley had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y. (Advertisement.)

CLEANS OUT TONES UP WHOLE SYSTEM

When you're clogged up by CONSTIPATION, jaundiced by a torpid LIVER, devitalized by poor BLOOD or soured by DYSPEPSIA your case calls for Dr. Thacher's Liver and Blood Syrup—an old physician's famous prescription, in successful use for 68 years as an all-around family medicine.

"From His Heart"

Mr. B. J. Hatcher, of Shell Bluff, Ga. says: "I am going to give you a testimonial that is from my heart. I would not be without DR. THACHER'S LIVER AND BLOOD SYRUP in my home and will try my very best to get it into every home in my locality. I take it and my wife and children take it whenever we see even the least indication of a coated tongue, since we know that the tongue is the thermometer of the stomach."

MELODY ANN

By FRANCES E. GOODRICH.

© 1921, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

Melody Ann sat on the back step, looking across the mist-filled valley. As usual she was singing, otherwise she would not have been Melody Ann.

"When Melody Ann takes them high notes it makes shivers go right up your backbone," said Deacon Brown, and the other villagers agreed with him.

"Too bad Melody Ann is so odd," they said. "If she'd only dress herself up a bit and not look so gawky she might get a fellow as well as the other girls; but, land's sake, all she thinks of is getting off by herself somewhere and singing."

She was odd. When the other young people were enjoying themselves with lively country amusements, Melody Ann was roaming through the woods or by the sea, singing in her high, untrained voice.

The mist slowly dissolved itself in pink, glistening dawn, and Melody Ann caught her breath for a moment with the beauty and mystery of it. Then, like a bird carolling the new day, her voice rose sweet and piercing in a hymn of praise.

She did not hear the automobile that stopped by the gate, nor see the heavily-built, black-bearded man who left the car and walked toward the back of the house, so she was much startled when a gruff voice said "Great! Do that over again, girl." Jumping up, she looked into black eyes that shone with eagerness. She stood looking at the stranger in astonishment, when his impatient command again broke his silence. "But—but—I don't know what I was singing," stammered Melody Ann. "I just sing that way most all the time."

"Well, you can sing the scale, can't you?" he asked.

"Oh, yes, sir. We are taught to sing that way in school," and, always glad to oblige when she could, she sang the scale. Then an octave higher, then still higher, but the man raised his hand. "That will do. Where are your parents? I want to see them."

"My father and mother are dead and I live with grandmother. Won't you come in?" and she led the way into the little kitchen, where the table was laid for breakfast. Mrs. Carwin appeared and with simple hospitality made a place for the stranger at the table.

With shy amazement Melody Ann heard him tell her grandmother that her voice was a remarkable one. It was his business to find and train just such voices as Melody Ann's.

Mrs. Carwin listened, eagerly; then with tears in her eyes slowly shook her head. "I know her voice is different from most, but we haven't any money for to have it trained now. Perhaps as soon as she gets to work herself she can earn a little and take lessons."

But the man shook his head impatiently. "Poof, we cannot wait until she can earn the money. The time to start this training is now, and the money will be provided. In New York there is a man of great wealth who gives liberally to train such girls as your granddaughter."

That evening the little house overlooking the valley was closed and Mrs. Carwin and Melody Ann went away in the big car to a new life.

Then began work such as Melody Ann had never dreamed of. There were many nights when she crept into bed, wishing with all her heart she was back in the little house on the hill, singing just as she liked.

For some time a thought had troubled Melody Ann. It seemed so ungrateful not to see her benefactor and thank him, even if he would have to wait a long time until she could repay him. She broached the subject to the teacher, but he discouraged it. "Wait until your first public appearance, and then you shall meet him," he said.

At last the day, the hour, the moment, and Melody Ann, in a simple frock of white, stood alone before that swaying sea of faces. A strange faintness held her for an instant, then the orchestra began the familiar air, the faces faded and before her lay the mist-filled valley, and she was welcoming the dawn.

The music stopped and her eyes saw the lights again and the faces, and she felt the tense silence. Then applause rolled like thunder through the great hall. She saw her teacher, rather white faced, but smiling, and grandmother, nodding happily with tears rolling down her cheeks.

At last the crowd was gone and Melody Ann stood face to face with the man who had made her success possible.

A year later Melody Ann sat on the back step waiting for the first pink flush to waken the gray mist to life, but she was not alone. A strong hand held her own tenderly, and Melody Ann looked into her husband's eyes with a great love shining in her own. "We will help many other girls just as you helped me, won't we?" she murmured, and got her answer with his lips against her own.

The pink swiftly spread over the gray and Melody Ann's voice rang joyously down the valley.

SHARKS TAKEN OFF NEW YORK

Their Capture Said to Have Been a Regular Thing Prior to and During Year 1815.

A shark nowadays even on the most exposed beaches of New York and the metropolitan area is a rarity and a curiosity, but there was a time when these fish used to be caught off Catharine slip, says the New York Sun. This was about 1815, when the fishing smacks and fish cars used to unload and load off this wharf in the East river and the dead fish thrown out into the water used to attract the sharks.

An old man, Sam Way, a porter in the old Catharine market, earned a reputation as a master shark catcher. "Shark around the slip," was the cry that was raised when a shark was sighted off the pier and then Sam would drop his broom and put out his chain hook and soon would have the giant fish struggling on the dock. He is said to have hauled in as many as seven in one day, some of them fourteen feet long.

Devoe, the historian, tells an incident which is passed on here with without confirmation:

"One day Sam hooked a big one and he climbed into a skiff which lay tied to the end of the slip; the shark took to pulling and broke loose the skiff with Sam in, and away he went down the river at race-horse speed, nearly as far as Red Hook before he tired out, or Sam could hold him up. He, however, mastered him and brought him back, and Sam after that concluded not to be run away with again. So he stuck to the raft or dock where he fished for 'shark' thereafter."

White Men in South Africa Hardly Recognized by Appellation of Brave and Noble Indunas.

Their adventure in Swaziland is told by a doctor who just returned from a ten years' sojourn there and who, with two other white men, was made sub-chief in the Swazi tribe of South Africa negroes. The white men were not eager for the experience, and the initiation was far from an inducement, the rule requiring that they should spend ten days of purgatory exile from human society, in native dress, with only native weapons, depending upon their skill in the use of these for food. The doctor told with considerable feeling how they were stripped by the leading medicine man of every shred of clothing given Swazi warrior costumes and conducted into the hills. They were bitten by insects, scratched by thorns, frozen at night, scorched by day, their bare feet bruised and abraded until they were in agony, kept in constant fear of the many poisonous snakes—but, most of all, hungry. In spite of L.Tunga's tutoring in native methods of taking game, the white men, used to depending upon the rifle for such purposes, nearly starved. However, when the chief medicine man and his assistants came to conduct them back to the kraal of the queen, the famished, dirty, desperate looking white men, with ten days' growth of beard, were acclaimed brave and noble indunas.

Hibernating Fishes.

Cold weather has a marked effect on some of the fresh water fish at the aquarium of the New York Zoological society. When the temperature of the fresh water flowing through the tanks of the aquarium falls below 40 degrees, certain fish become very sluggish. The young yellow perch lie quietly at the bottom of the tank, as evenly spaced as if put there by their keeper, and take little food. A low temperature affects young black bass in quite a different way. They stay poised somewhere above the bottom, but crowded close together. Fifty or more will often gather in a compact mass, all facing in the same direction. The aquarium has several tanks of young black bass, all groups of which show the same curious habit.

Didn't Play the Game.

She is a young woman of artistic talents and makes a snug bit of change manufacturing dainty bits of embroidery and fancy work. She was displaying samples of her handicraft in her home, the purpose being to sell her wares for Christmas gifts.

The other day an interested caller looked over the various displays.

"Here are some bridge table covers that many of my patrons admire," said the young woman of artistic talents.

"Not for me," the prospective customer replied. "I only play euchre."—Indianapolis News.

Seek Cheap Power Alcohol.

Gasoline users will be interested to know that the search for cheap sources of power alcohol still continues. A recent writer in Nature suggests that foodstuffs are too valuable at present for such uses, but thinks that waste land in Ireland might be used to produce crops to be utilized in this way. Arrowroot, cassava and corn are possibilities in tropical countries; and a number of cellulose materials, such as straw and sawdust, offer possibilities in industrial regions.

Mummy's Wisdom.

"Mummy, may I have that chocolate you promised me now?" "Bless the child! Didn't I tell you you shouldn't have any at all if you didn't keep quiet?" "Yes, mummy." "Well, the longer you keep quiet the sooner you'll get it."—Brooklyn Eagle.

Political Strategy.

"After a member of congress has lived in Washington for a time he acquires the airs of a statesman."

"Most of my colleagues do," said Senator Shortworthly, "but personally I prefer to look like a small town business man. I may not impress foreign visitors as much, but it makes me stronger with the folks back home when a constituent of mine returns from a visit to Washington and tells the boys there are no frills about Jim Shortworthly. He's just as much a friend of the plain people as he ever was."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Record Telephone Conversation.

A telephone conversation was recently held between a ship 100 miles off the Atlantic coast of the United States and Catalina Island, 30 miles off the coast of California, wireless telephony being used over the water and wire telephony over the land. This is the first time the voice of man has been carried across a continent and stretches of two adjacent oceans.

Gifted Orator.

"Senator Shortworthly says we must save the country."

"Has he any ideas about the best way to do that?"

"No, but he can make a speech on the subject that will hold an audience spellbound for an hour."

Catarrhal Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure catarrhal deafness, and that is by a constitutional remedy. Catarrhal Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be reduced and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Many cases of deafness are caused by catarrh, which is an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. Hall's Catarrh Medicine acts thru the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Catarrhal Deafness that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Medicine. Circulars free. All Druggists, 75c.

Notices of Church Services Free

WEDNESDAY, JAN. 18, 1922

Irrespective of one's opinion as to the propriety of Postmaster-General Hays' action in defecting one of the "best minds" from public service to commercial lines, it is gratifying to know that the new Dictator of Movieland has a truer appreciation of the fitness of things than has the Czar of Baseball, as is evidenced by the announcement of his resignation to take effect in the near future.

The General Assembly now has under consideration a proposal to submit to the people a constitutional amendment permitting a $50,000-000 bond issue to be used for the completion of the system of intercounty State roads, the plan for which was mapped out by the Legislature of 1920. It is estimated by the advocates of the proposition that the present road fund, derived from the automobile tax, gasoline tax, &c., will be sufficient to pay the interest on the bonds and provide an adequate sinking fund to retire them at maturity, thus obviating the necessity of any increased taxation for that purpose. That we need the road improvement contemplated goes without saying and if it can be obtained in the way indicated, without additional burdens on the taxpayers, it should, and, probably would, carry, if submitted to a vote of the people.

The faithful Republican partisan
"regulars" in the United States Senate ran true to form Saturday when they applied a thin and unconvincing coat of whitewash to the plutocratic G. O. P. claimant of the Michigan senatorial toga. Newberry's statement to the Senate just before the vote had no effect on the result, as no one believed it would. It was a clean-cut choice between honesty and justice and political expediency, the latter having the under-hold. The expenditure of an enormous "slush fund" was conclusively proved in a court of law as well as before the senatorial investigating committee.
If Newberry did not know that such methods were used in his campaign, it changes the suspicion directed toward him from corruption to that of imbecility. The Senate is bad enough already without a further admixture of such. But the leaders of his party in the Upper House were not so charitable, as was evidenced by their abstract censure of such methods as obtained his election.

Little Truman was oh! so naughty
To treat "Ein Lizzie" so rough.
But they needed his vote and his boodle,
So a slap on the wrist was enough.

Fire caused by sparks from the kitchen stove caused slight damage to the roof of the residence of Mr.
R. D. Walker, on Clay Street, about 7 o'clock Monday night. The blaze was discovered by Master Park Tappan as he was making his paper route. The alarm was promptly given and the volunteer fire brigade turned out instantly, extinguishing the fire before it could gain any appreciable headway.

Mrs. Annie Berryman, of near Hartford, left last Monday for Los Angeles, mainder of the winter with her daughter, Mrs. Homer Driskill, and family.

Louisville as the guest of her nephews,
Messrs. Wood and Edward Axton.

RECKLESS EVENING

By MILDRED WHITE

Copyright, 1921, Western Newspaper Union.

The little woman ran lightly up the steps and passed on through the long hall. As she opened the living room door a girl bending over a book glanced up questioningly.

"Why, Aunt Priscilla!" she exclaimed, "where have you been? It is after ten o'clock."

The little woman laughed softly as she paused diffident in the doorway. It seemed, as her dark eyes twinkled into the reproving face of her young niece, that the two had changed places.

She tossed her demure gray hair to the couch and sank into a chair.

"Really, I hardly know how to account for my lateness or my rashness, Lois," she said. "The past two hours have been like a foolish, adventurous sort of dream, and I thought that I had outgrown adventurous fancies, Lois."

"You will never outgrow adventure, Aunt Prissy," said Lois. "Now, tell me what happened."

"I took old Mrs. Dale home in the car," Priscilla began, "and was hurrying back along the avenue when I came upon a wedding party. The bride couple were, evidently, about to make their escape in a white taxi; while the other cars were maneuvering to follow. And I, wedged suddenly into the narrow line, found myself, by degrees, exactly before the house entrance. And while I leaned back a tall man came swiftly down the carpeted steps and deliberately to the door of my coupe."

"Now," he said pleasantly, "you can start." As I turned to stare at him, the limousine and all the cars before it were off in a mad rush. The bride couple had slipped into their taxi, and the attendants madly agreed to follow—where no one knew.

"The man at my side was a fine looking man, his face aglow with interest and enthusiasm."

"Shall I take the wheel?" he asked eagerly. "I want to be there with the others when they stop at the station."

"And, Lois, I don't know what influence seized me then; it may have been the sheer masterfulness of the man's tones, or it may have been an infection of daring from the occupants of the cars all about us; but I bent to my wheel and I chased that wedding party."

"I don't remember seeing you at the reception," my companion said presently. "But I take it for granted that you are Mollie. 'Go right out, now,' Ned said to me, as they made their escape, 'and you will find Mollie waiting for you in the car at the door.'"

Ned used often to speak of his sister Mollie when we were college boys together. Now, possibly, you are married; if so, I am unacquainted with your new name."

"Lois," Priscilla leaned forward, "do you know what answer I made to do all that? I did not say, 'You are mistaken in your person. You have been mistaken all along, Mr. Take-It-for-Granted.' No; all I said was, 'I am not married.' Then, all at once my companion snapped open his watch and looked into my face."

"I am sorry," he said; "I have forgotten something important. I must ask you to let me out here."

"I came sharply to myself and to a realization of my own recklessness, and as I reached to unfasten the door I was thankful that I had not corrected the man's wrong impression. 'I will see you again,' he said."

Priscilla's gaze was on the fire, abstracted—long. The girl awakened her. "And then, oh, unruly aunt," she mocked, "what happened?"

"I came home," Priscilla ended abruptly. She lifted her arm.

"Why, Lois," she exclaimed, "My jeweled bracelet; do you see it about anywhere? I had it on this evening when I drove Mrs. Dale home. I recall her admiration of the diamond clasp. Lois—I have lost it!"

The girl arose from a search. "The bracelet may be in the car, Aunt Prissy," she said crisply. "But my opinion is that your fine confident stranger has it in his possession."

Priscilla was on her feet. "Lois," she cried, "if I never find that bracelet, if I never see that man again, I know that he is innocent."

"Even," jeered Lois, "if your jewel were to be found in his pocket."

The door bell interrupted. Lois flew to answer its summons. A tall man stood in the doorway, his voice pleasing, vibrant, reached Priscilla. He held the bracelet out to her.

"Most amazing!" he exclaimed. "I found this trinket in my overcoat pocket when I felt for my gloves. It must have dropped in from your arm. I am happy to return it to you. When I called up Ned's home I found that I had mistaken another person for his sister, and it is fortunate chance, perhaps, that revealed you to me as I passed your lighted window. I," said the pleasing stranger, "am the minister who tonight tied my old friend's nuptial knot."

Japan. Enlightened by China. There appears to have been no written language in Japan till Chinese characters were introduced into Japan from Korea in the reign of Emperor Ojin, A. D. 285. The convenience caused by Chinese characters led afterward to the invention of katakana and hiragana, the Japanese syllabary, which contributed much toward improving the nation's language.

STORIES OF VENIZELLOS' BIRTH

Two Legends Told, One of Them Narrated by the Great Greek Statesman Himself.

There are many legends surrounding the birth of Venizelos. According to one, his mother went to the Monastery of the Virgin near Canea to pray for a son, promising the child should be born in a cattle shed after New Testament tradition. Another tells the same story with this addition: When the abbot christened Venizelos he uttered, following the mother's wish, these prophetic words: "I baptize thee Eleutherios, for thou shalt deliver our long-suffering island from the tyranny of the Turks."

In the "Life of Venizelos," by S. B. Chester, still another story is told, based on incidents narrated by the Greek statesman himself at a dinner party in London. His parents, having already lost three children, decided to follow the local custom and adopt him as a foundling. There was a superstition that the child would survive only if treated in this fashion. Eleutherios was duly taken away from his mother and deposited on a heap of dry leaves outside the house. Passing by soon afterward, some friends, who, of course, played their role in the secret, "discovered" the child, brought him to his parents and urged that they adopt him as a foundling. They did, and Eleutherios survived and prospered.

LAW HAD BIBLICAL SANCTION

West Virginia Mayor Couldn't See Where Autoist Had Any Reason for Complaint.

Law founded on the Bible is good enough for Mayor Gilmore of Morgantown, W. Va. A local man charged with not having the tall light burning on his automobile was arraigned before the mayor, who assessed a fine of $3.

The accused protested, said that it was a poor law under which he was fined and that he did not think it would hold water in court.

The mayor declared any law founded on the Bible was good enough for him. The defendant said he couldn't see where a tall light had anything to do with the Bible. The mayor looked pityingly at the accused and said:

"Do you remember the tale about the ten virgins, five of whom had lights and five of whom didn't? Well, if you do, you will remember that the Lord wouldn't have anything to do with the five without lights, and neither will this court."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Miniature Libraries.

A curious idea in book making is offered by a firm of French publishers. Their plan consists of substituting for the large pages of the average books microphotographic reproductions of them to be read through a magnifying glass.

It is proposed that the size of the plates representing pages should be internationally standardized, so that any one possessing the magnifying apparatus would be able to read any book produced in this way. No technical difficulties are said to be in the way.

It is claimed that the cost of production would be enormously reduced. Also it would greatly reduce the work of libraries now cumbered by books of every shape and size. The plates would be, moreover, of a fire-proof and durable material, while the system admits of an edition being enlarged to any dimension desired in accordance with demand.

Making Library Helpful. Presuming that a public library is so well conducted that its custodians are able to direct applicants promptly to the volume asked for, the next step for an ideal institution would be to advertise the treasures which it holds in trust for all citizens.

It would appear that the Newark (N. J.) library has reached the second stage, for it has been distributing circulars telling how the ambitious worker may educate himself by reading, and how the library can help him to find just the right things to read. Taking a cue from the methods of writers of eye-catching advertisements, the library entitled the circular in large type: "Get Wise Quick."—Christian Science Monitor.

Proud South American Cities.

If Caracas claims the title of "The Paris of the New World"—and so they called the Venezuelan capital in the century past—we ought to remember that Bogota, Colombia's capital, was early in the sixteenth century famed as "The Athens of South America."

This city, founded in 1538, was a center of culture, before Harvard university had been thought of. Cartagena, Colombia, is fondly known as "The Heroic City," or "The Cradle of South American Liberty."—New York Evening Post.

Engine Wrongly Blamed.

A very nervous man bought a motor car and a friend asked him to give him a lift. They found themselves in a crowded street.

The friend said: "Jim, your engine is knocking badly."

"Don't be a fool," was the reply. "That's my knee."

Looking Just Ahead.

Hydro-electric developments, totaling 13,500,000 horse power, and a doubling of the present ratings of central station plants, are regarded as probable within the next four years by some American authorities.

ONE OF THE BACK DISTRICTS

"You say he is an old-fashioned politician?"

"Decidedly."

"How does he manage to hold his job in this enlightened era?"

"He comes from a section where the voters are in the habit of re-electing the same man to office as long as he lives and sometimes vote for him five years after he's dead."

Deceyed. "How did you happen to buy a motorcar?"

"It was this way. I was reading a story in a magazine."

"A motor romance, I suppose."

"No, but it was carried over into the advertising section and right then I discovered a make of car I couldn't live without."

Dangerous Aversion. "Do you remember the old-fashioned copy book with the line, 'Honesty is the best policy'?"

"Yes," replied Mr. Dustin Stax. "It was a mistake to make that line a copy book task. Some of the old-timers I have met in business evidently wrote it till they got sick and tired of it."

Profitable Business. "Who are these prisoners?"

"Convicted 'moonshiners' on their way to the penitentiary."

"Didn't I overhear one of them tell a friend not to forget to attend to a little matter at the bank?"

"You probably did. He may have a little matter of $50,000 or $100,000 in the bank."

Signs of Promise. "I guess our boy Josh is going to be a genius," said Farmer Cornsossel.

"Ain't the genius business kind of uncertain?"

"A little."

"Nobody seems to know exactly what a genius is supposed to do, or whether he can earn a living. That's why I think Josh'll be one."

HOW SHE MANAGED IT Oh Mrs. Wad, how is it that you are ready before your husband? Sh-h-h-h! I hid some of his things until I was completely dressed.

Seems True. This world is but a fleeting show, And no wise man regrets it. For man wants little here below, And all the time he gets it.

The Complete Program. "Women are not content to be admired for their personal beauty and taste in attire. They insist on being appreciated for their wisdom."

"Of course," answered the railroad man. "It isn't sufficient to stop and look. You've got to listen."

Hog Meat. "I once printed a poem for that rural subscriber and today he sent me another valuable contribution from his pen."

"Eh?"

"A prime pig."

Pessimism Explained. "Blank is always foreseeing disaster."

"Yes, poor fellow. You see his imagination works a lot better than his liver."

Unchanged. Cobb—My mother still thinks the world of me.

Robb—Ah! A man never gets too old to enjoy hearing his mother brag about him.

Question Marks. Lawyer (to lady witness)—Married? Witness—Yes; twice.

Lawyer—Your age? Witness—Twenty-eight years.

Lawyer—Also twice?

Sorry He Spoke. Hewitt—A penny for your thoughts.

Jewett—I was thinking of a larger amount; can you lend me five—that is, $5?

Nothing at All. "There is to be very little change in trousers this year," says a fashion hint. If that bird is speaking of ours he's probably right.

Very Undignified. Hewitt—Grue hasn't any dignity.

Jewett—True enough; I understand that he lets his mother-in-law call him by his first name.

EXAMINATION FOR COMMON SCHOOL DIPLOMAS 27th. and 28th.

Examinations for Ohio County, Common School Graduates, for diplomas, are to be held at Fordsville, Beaver Dam and Hartford on the fourth Friday and Saturday, January 27 and 28. All common school students who have completed the course should avail themselves of the opportunity to take some one of these examinations, whether they contemplate entering high school or not. It will be well worth the trouble and time.

ASSESSMENT COMPLETED

Tax Commissioner D. E. Ward has completed the assessment rolls for the year 1922, as of July first 1921. The report shows a total assessment of $11,234,825 compared with a total of $11,879,644 for the year previous, a loss of $635,819. The report shows 2,363 dogs, 181 of which are females.

The Seniors of Beaver Dam High School presented their play "Bashful Mr. Bobbs" at Rockport Monday evening, before an unusually large and appreciative audience. The play was given at Beaver Dam during the Xmas holidays and met with great success. The proceeds are to be used for the benefit of the school.

INFANT DIES

Floyd Augustus, the one-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Elmore, died at their home in Browder, last Tuesday, of cerebro-spinal meningitis. The remains were conveyed to Beaver Dam and interred in Sunnyside Cemetery, Wednesday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock.

Mrs. Elmore was unable to attend the burial on account of being herself, seriously ill.
